

One day there were two girls named Hella and Henry. They loved to play games. They have fun playing many many nice with numbers. They play for seven months and enjoy for seven days. Play for joy. They loved to play all day long but they need to write. Mom was right. They need to write. But they did not like because they love to play with games and toys. But mom said you should write. Then the dogs barked at mom. Mom got scared and ran away to friends house. The friends loved her. She was happy. Hella and Henry did not need mom, only dogs.
