

The adventure of the three sisters

Elodie Arnold

The adventures of the three sisters

Written by

Elodie Arnold

Published by Saronti Ltd

Facilitated by Nikki Young at Storymakers

Chapter 1

What to do

Moss, Autumn and Summer had just moved to Vancouver Island and they were helping Dad unload their belongings from the moving van. Autumn was moaning and groaning about the dust that was getting up her nose and that it was dank and musty.

"Should we go and climb trees?" asked Moss.

"Should we look for animals?" suggested Summer.

"Should we just go and explore?" said Autumn impatiently.

"We will do that then," said Summer

They went to find their dad.

"Dad, can we go?" they pleaded.

"Yes, but be back by tea," Dad said chuckling.

"Come on guys!" shouted Moss excitedly.

Chapter 2

The exploration

They set off.

"This is amazing!" said Autumn in awe.

The eagles were squawking and then suddenly from behind a rock a pack of wolves came strolling across the shoreline...

They watched the wolves for about ten minutes, but were woken up from their trance by a cold wind which stopped abruptly then started and stopped again. They walked towards the source; it was a cave!

"Should we go and check it out?" asked Moss.

"Sure," said Autumn.

"Fine by me," replied Summer.

As soon as Moss set one foot in, it suddenly lit up...

Chapter 3

The finding

Moss was so shocked, she fell forward into the misty, bone-chilling light, that wrapped around her like a suffocating blanket.

"Moss!" screamed Autumn.

"This is bad," whispered Summer in confusion and worry.

Then all of a sudden Autumn ran at the cave entrance and Summer shouted "NOOOOOOOOOO!!!!!!!!!!!"

But she ran through the eerie light to find her sisters...

Suddenly, Summer realised her sisters were definitely not at the back of the cave, but they had gone through some type of portal, but like her had hurtled past the rocky edges of the cave and straight through the back.

Determined to find them, she broke through the portal and got thrown out the mouth of it onto the forest floor. It was dank, dark and gloomy and obviously the middle of winter. Then someone tapped Summer on the shoulder. It was Autumn and she had Moss with her! Then there was a voice. Someone was singing, but for who...

"Come little children I'll take them away—" Then it stopped abruptly, and a little old lady came into view. She looked like she was seventy three. Then she spoke.

"Hello children, what brings you to my woods? May I help you?"

"Yes please," said Moss breezily.

"Okay, I'll take you to my cabin."

Autumn elbowed Moss in a 'what did you do' kind of way.

All of a sudden the old lady turned around and said,
"What are you doing, you tasty morsels?"

"Can she see out the back of her head?" whispered Summer to her sisters.

"I am more worried about whether she is going to eat us or not," said Autumn her voice quivering.

"Come on, quick, whilst she is not looking we should run away," suggested Moss.

"Yeah sounds good to me," said Autumn but Summer didn't answer and as they looked up, the old lady was staring at them maliciously. Then, with a snap of her fingers, they were stuck in cages.

"You won't escape now!" she croaked.

"Let us go!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!" screamed Autumn in fury.

"No," said the old hag croakily.

Chapter 4

The Great Escape

The children were carried to the dusty, old cabin that the old hag lived in.

She hung them up on the beam in the middle of the house, but it wasn't that high up because the roof was very low. They sat there, then Autumn said, "We are about a foot off the ground, why aren't our cages higher?"

"Because, young girl, my roof is low," the witch replied.

Then Autumn realised that their cages were padlocked, and she could pull the lock into the cage enough to pick it with her hair pin.

She also realised that if she got out without the hag knowing then she would be able to get the others out of their cages too. So, Autumn pulled her hair pin out and put it in the lock. She twisted it and the lock opened and she caught it before it fell and hit the ground. And Then, whilst the hag was still gathering the many ingredients for the life potion, Autumn slipped out of the cage and let the others out too. Once they had put the locks in the cage, so they didn't clunk on the floor, they sprinted out of the house. Unfortunately, the door slammed as they did so...

The hag turned around to find they were gone! She raced out of the door in pursuit, but she tripped and fell. The girls heard her cries and turned to see she had fallen, so they took the chance to run and hide behind a nearby tree. Then the hag got up and carried on running, thinking they had carried on as well.

"Where's the portal?" asked Moss.

"I think it was over by that tree," Replied Summer.

So they wandered over to the tree and Moss put her foot in and the portal started glowing. They walked through, and with a flash of green light, they were back on Vancouver island.

"Wow!" said Autumn.

"That was interesting!" said Summer.

"Cooooooooooooooooool!" said Moss mesmerised.

"We should get home as it's almost tea time and Dad will be worrying." said Autumn hurriedly.

So they sprinted home and had a soul-warming beef stew. They didn't whisper a word about their adventure for the rest of the day.

We hope that you, your family and friends enjoy the book you have created. This project was co-ordinated and facilitated by author Nikki Young for members of her Storymakers writing club.

Find out more at: www.storymakersclub.com and register for your next exciting course.

The Storymakers Writing Club provides English and writing support to children aged 7+ in the form of weekly groups, 1:1 sessions and holiday workshops.

Publish your book at www.saronti.com/storymakers

Do you like to write stories?

Ever fancied publishing one of them?

It's easy with Saronti.

Get in touch to find out more about our publishing packages for young authors.

www.saronti.com

Need another copy of this book?
Go to www.saronti.com/storymakers
Your book reference is Sar2811

Mass, Autumn & Summer move to Vancouver Island. They go exploring, and find what they think is a cave entrance. However, they end up in the woods in a potentially dangerous situation.

Will they escape?

saronti