CHAPTER ONE:

THE KNIGHTS OF THE ANCIENT REALM

Once upon a time in the Ancient Realm, an ancient mansion stood, surrounded by dark trees in a wild winter, with crumbling stone walls and heavy defences. It was impenetrable and fortified with iron bars, which were as big and strong as a cyclops.

The lonely mansion was inhabited and protected by The Knights of the Ancient Realm, including one special knight, Knight Joey.

The knights were divided into seven squadrons: an Attack Squad, who attack enemy forts and castles for weapons, armour and land; a Building Squad, responsible for building defences on and around the mansion; the Material Squad who collect resources for building; an Armour Squad, responsible for the knights' armour; the Defence Squad who defend the mansion from intruders and animals. Sixth is the Food Squad who collects bread and food to feed everyone, and finally - the most prestigious squad of all - King Room Knights who are trained rigorously to defend the king himself.

Each group is led by their own commander.

CHAPTER TWO: IN SEARCH OF FOOD

Now, let me tell you about Knight Joey.

Joey was the Elite Knight Commander of the Defence Squad and he had become increasingly worried about the remaining food supplies, which were dwindling due to the severe winter conditions.

Since Knight Joey had to stay behind to guard the mansion from wolves or intruders, and oversee the other knights in their work, he decided to send the Food Squad out on a mission to nearby villages in search of food supplies, and gather what they could from the forest.

"Where could the nearest village be?" pondered one of the knights from the Food Squad.

"We have been travelling for 2 hours already!" noted another.

"I see a village over on that mountain!" exclaimed a third.

As they approached the village, they realised it was in flames. "We'll have to find another village," ordered Knight 2, who was now in charge. "Let's go!"
